Organizational capacity in Sport Organizations

The COVID-19 pandemic has had a considerable impact on many sport organizations as public health restrictions forced some to either close or operate at reduced capacity. The pandemic has contributed to challenges with human resourcing as many of these organizations have experienced difficulties with the retention of staff and volunteers, which may have been in part due to illness and/or trepidation about returning to work. Source: CFLRI, 2020-2021 Sport Organizations survey
